

A PRACTICAL RESOURCE FOR CHOIRS, WORSHIP TEAMS, AND CHURCHES

SINGING IS A CONTACT SPORT

Why Worship Isn't a Spectator Act

CRAIG MARVIN JOHNSON

Worship was never meant to be watched from the sidelines.

Singing Is A Contact Sport is a practical, pastoral book that helps singers and churches recover active congregational worship. Craig Marvin Johnson combines a biblical vision of singing with useful guidance for the body, voice, heart, and ministry of the worshiper.

IDEAL FOR

- Choir members and choir directors
- Worship team singers and worship leaders
- Pastors, church staff, and worship volunteers
- Churches rebuilding congregational participation

READERS WILL GAIN

- A biblical vision for whole-body, wholehearted singing
- Practical help with breath, posture, resonance, projection, and vocal health
- A renewed understanding of choir and worship team ministry
- Encouragement to pursue excellence without ego
- Permission to sing with conviction, preparation, and joy

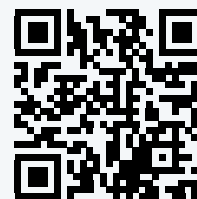

PUT IT TO WORK IN YOUR CHURCH

Use it for a choir devotional, worship team training, staff discussion, retreat, or volunteer gift.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Craig Marvin Johnson is Pastor of Worship and Discipleship at Wrightsboro Baptist Church in Wilmington, North Carolina. He is a musician, writer, husband, father of six, and pastor passionate about worship, discipleship, and seeing people respond to the gospel.

PAPERBACK $14.99

SCAN TO LEARN MORE