

YOU CAN'T GET THAT ONLINE

Rediscovering Worship, Community, and Growth in the Gathered Church

Some things can be streamed.
The life of the church must be experienced.

Online worship can be a genuine blessing. But watching a service is not the same as sharing life with the body of Christ.

In You Can't Get That Online, Craig Marvin Johnson offers a gracious, biblical invitation to move from watching toward belonging.

SEVEN DIMENSIONS OF GATHERED LIFE

Presence | Fellowship | Service
Accountability | Worship | Care | Belonging

Readers will discover why a sermon can be streamed but a life is shared; why gathered worship needs their voice; why gifts are discovered while serving beside others; and why burdens are carried by people who come close enough to notice.

IDEAL FOR

Individual readers, small groups, membership classes, volunteer teams, pastoral gifts, and church-wide re-engagement conversations.

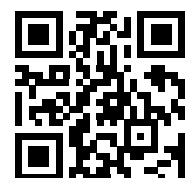

COME WITH OPEN HANDS AND AN OPEN HEART

Open hands: ready to serve, give, receive, embrace, help, and participate.

An open heart: ready to worship, listen, repent, learn, connect, forgive, and be known.

STREAMING CONNECTS. GATHERING TRANSFORMS.

Craig Marvin Johnson writes at the intersection of biblical truth, worship, discipleship, and the lived experience of the local church. Through CrossTalk Publishing, he creates books and resources designed to equip believers and strengthen the church.
